the surgeon's story:

a man and his son were driving home on a saturday afternoon after the son's little league game. they were involved in a head-on collision and the father was killed. the son was taken to the emergency room of a nearby hospital. the surgeon walked in and said, "i can't operate on him. he's my son."

is there a paradox in this story or not? does it contradict itself or not?

i've told this story to hundreds of people over the years. EVERY ONE of them thought that this story was paradoxical, logically impossible, self- contradictory, etc. some people have even heard it before and still fall for it.

there are NO paradoxes or inconsistencies in this story.

if one is aware of any problem here, that problem resides in one's ANALYSIS OF THE STORY, not in the story itself.

the problem arises from an erroneous, unconsious assumption imposed on one's analysis of the situation by the LANGUAGE MACHINE that does one's thinking.

your language machine probably thinks in english most of the time.

rule #n in gendo is: don't believe everything you hear your language machine say.

rule #n+3 in gendo is: if you think in english, you're confused.

english imposes unconscious assumptions on our thinking all the time. occasionally these assumptions are not incorrect.

but what if they're wrong/misleading/inappropriate/etc?

as long as erroneous, unconscious assumptions remain operative and unconscious, there can be no solution to the apparent problems they generate.

an "answer" to this type of problem is achieved in seeing that there is no problem.

erroneous, unconscious assumptions inhibit the most obvious and simple logical operations:

little league boys generally have two parents.

one father (male)

one mother (female)

IF father (male) dead

THEN mother (female) surgeon

the surgeon was the boy's mother.

the word "surgeon" carries with it the assumption "man".

(half of those hundreds of people who've heard the surgeon's story were women, many of them high level executives in business and industry. unconscious assumptions are powerful.)

it may be true that 98% (or whatever) of the surgeons are men AND that "man" is not an unreasonable default value.

but it is crucial to remember that it is an ASSUMPTION about the way things are, not THE WAY THINGS ARE.

unconscious assumptions (UA) can be dangerous to/for persons and planets.

when there's a problem, look first inward for unconscious assumptions unconscious assumptions are great if:

1. they're right

and

2. things don't change too quickly

until recently, humanity has been well served by the assumptions embedded in the language machines within their skulls.

the last couple of generations, however, are the first in all human history where PEOPLE OUTLIVE IDEAS. previously, people acquired a certain set of skills/concepts/ ways of being/ assumptions/ etc. as children and then spent the rest of their lives refining those skills/ways/etc... they never had to rethink and possibly discard one set of assumptions/etc. for another set.

the idea of progress (change as common, even good) is a new idea in the world(Earth). in the past change was almost always bad. the huns came through raping/ pillaging/ etc. or a great drought wiped out an entire geographical habitat. basically things were cyclical and repetitive — winter, spring, summer, autumn... planting, waiting, harvesting... birth, death, birth...

but now, many of the truths/expectations/etc that we grew up with must be reevaluated — a difficult and painful process for most of us.

we haven't been prepared by our culture for this task. it's our generation's job to develop the skills/attitudes/etc.

cleaning up (reprogramming) our language machines is not a bad place to start.

for hundeds of years, our ancestors just dumped their refuse wherever they pleased and it wasn't a problem. it worked and made sense and it was easy. they assumed a lot, and their assumptions weren't contradicted until recently. now we get to deal with the consequences of our ancestor's assumptions.

"surgeon" is a trivial instance of an unconscious assumption attached to a word that almost never occurs and, in any case, is unlikely to cause trouble in any real life situation that might arise.

however, there is another word that carries with it an assumption that is wrong, or at least inappropriate about 80% of the time.

this little word can be shown to contribute to almost every problem we face today: personal/marital/planetary/national/economic/etc.

it threatens the very continuance of humanity in Earth.

it's THE most common word in written english

it's THE world's most dangerous three-letter word

it's THE

the explanation

huh? "THE"! THE most dangerous three-letter word in the english language?

that little word?

you gotta be kiddin'.

what a jerk!

that's right! i'm not kidding!

it's one of those little, unnoticed, apparently insignificant words that go right by without much (or any) thought or awareness.

it's the most common word in written published english. it appears on an average of once every 20 words in semi-intelligent english writing.

the word "the" carries with it some very dangerous and generally unconscious assumptions of finality/exclusivity/certainty/etc that, according to my research, are wrong (or at least inappropriate and unnecessarily narrow) over 85% of the time, compromising our ability to act creatively and think clearly in difficult and intense situations. those rare occasions where clean, decisive, creative action is crucial to survival (financial, emotional, physical, etc.)

for example...

last century, historians wrote books titled, "The History of New England". Today, no historian in his right mind would ever call a book that. It would be called, "A History of New England".

please perform the following experiment.

say out loud, "The History of New England" now say out loud, "A History of New England" most people notice that these two utterances inhabit two entirely difference emotional/grandular/physical/etc. universes. they feel entirely different.

try saying them both again, this time paying particular attention to various subtle bodily sensations/emotional reactions/etc.

the implications of a book entitled "THE history of new england" are obvious. this is THE TRUTH, THE WHOLE TRUTH, AND ANYTHING THAT DIFFERS FROM IT IS WRONG.

"A History of New England" leaves it open for other interpretations, new insights and understandings.

the truth is that there is no such THING as THE history of new england. there are many histories of new england: economic, geological, political, musical, military, architectural, etc. there are as many histories as there are clever people to dream up things to explore in the attempt to understand the past.

it's important to distinguish between 1) the familiarity with the common sound patterns we've heard since infancy and 2) the information and structural content of an utterance.

two levels of words:

pointers

relational

since the map is not the territory, the only content/meaning/etc. of linguistic "knowledge" is structure.

The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language definition of THE, A and AN:

the (1). The definite article, functioning as an adjective. It is used: 1. Before singular or plural nouns and noun phrases that denote particular specified persons or things. 2. Before a singular noun, making it generic: the human arm. 3. Before a noun, and generally stressed, emphasizing its uniqueness or prominence: That's THE show to see this year. 4. Before a title or rank or office, designating its holder: The President arrives tomorrow.

5. Before an adjective, extending it to signify a class and giving it the function of a noun: the rich; the beautiful. 6. before an adjective used absolutely: the finest we have to offer. 7. Before a present participle, signifying the action in the abstract: the weaving of rugs. 8. Before a noun, with the force of per: at a dollar the box.

the (2). adv. To that extent; by that much: the sooner the better.

a. Indefinite article functioning as an adjective. 1. Used before nouns and nouns phrases that denote a single, but unspecified, person or thing: a region; a man. 2. Used before plural nouns modified by few, good many, or great many: a few donations. 3. One kind of: birds of a feather. 4. Any: not a drop to drink.

an. The indefinite article, a form of a used before words beginning with a vowel or with an unpronounced h: an elephant; an hour

Where did you learn to think? 18219 Thinking means talking to yourself 1. We think in English (hapefully silently) 2. The L. we think in determines the quality of our thinking. 3. English is flawed. ando is a disciplined approach to self-defense in the domain of language. We face 2 major threats in the world domain of a. 1.) other people - manipulating is. 2) our own the L.M. #2 is the most dangerous of the two. It's like an introsemina in horate where you learn emergency self defense techniques_ only we'll be dealing with verbal attacks - not physical ones.

the aim of the work is to develop a language (EarthLing) and an attitude (that of an editor/programmar of your own L/M). — An attitude of disenthwallment from the L.M., from rationality.

Rationality (is not/shouldn't be) at war with THEBODY.

"I" is not either of them. They are both "modes" into which "I" submerges "myself".
